From Her Majesty

Let it be known throughout the West that one of Our wandering flock, Einarr (#6, the one I gave Kolskegg) long absent on mysterious adventures beyond the mountains and across the wide lands, has at last returned from its travels in the distant realm of Atlanta.

When Einarr was liberated (during a moment of questionable supervision, as many are) they were innocent and unadorned. When they returned, however, they had been transformed by their adventures, bearing both a piercing and a tattoo of most questionable judgment. Whether these embellishments were earned through feats of valor, lost wagers, artistic patronage, or ill-advised companionship remains under investigation.

The sheep reports that they were treated with great honor in those foreign lands, paraded among gentiles and nobles both and introduced to strange customs. They has brought back tales and trinkets We are assured are fashionable in those regions.

Let none think the sheep diminished by its adornments. Nay, such markings are but the visible record of a life boldly lived and mischievously conducted. Indeed, it stands now as a decorated veteran of the Great Sheeply Wanderings, a living testament to the truth that while sheep may roam far, they inevitably earn to return to Our Western Lands.
