From Their Royal Highnesses

Unto the populace of the West,

Greetings from your Crown Prince and Princess, Hans and Ciar, on this, the 14th day of April, A.S. LVII.

After a long and wet gray winter, Our Kingdom was gifted a shining blue day for Our warriors to test their skill and mettle in the Crown List. The day was hard fought down to the last round of Finals, and the determination, joy, and fellowship was palpable in the air. We are overjoyed for the opportunity to serve the West and have no doubt that the spirit of Crown was an auspicious beginning to this reign. We are so very grateful for the heartfelt congratulations and offers of assistance we have received as we prepare for the coming months.

We are excited to step up at Beltane. We will also be selecting Queen's Heavy and Queen's Rapier Champions at the event, with a prize tourney for heavy fighting and adding a prize component to the currently scheduled West Kingdom Rapier Championship Tournament. Between the marshall activities, court shenanigans, and an evening of bardic to select the new Bard of the West, it is sure to be a delightful and memorable day!

We are looking forward to seeing you at Beltane and embarking on this adventure with you all.

Yours in Service,
Hans and Ciar

From Their Highnesses of the Mists

The long, wet winter months have receded, new greenery is on the hills, and WAR is on the horizon! Our sources tell us our Cynaguan Siblings are sending a significant force to lay claim to the KHTI lands.

We call on every member and friend of the Mists, warrior or not, to pack up the war wagon, bring your banners, prepare for classes and come help the Mists lay equal claim to the KHTI lands. (Don't miss the opportunity to brag to your grandchildren that you were there, this first time the People's lands were used!!!).

The theme this year will be communication, revelry and honing the skills of the Western army, so that we all are ready to face An Tir in July.

As We Ourselves are preparing to retire to Our estates, We are confident in the knowledge that Our beloved Principality is in good hands and that Our Heirs will be bringing their youth and exuberance to continue lifting us out of the days of plague.

It has truly been Our pleasure serving as your Sovereign and Sovereign Consort

Long live the Principality of the Mists!

Neil and Kelsy

Words from the Kingdom Seneschal

Greetings to you all!

This is the first in a series of posts I am calling the State of the Kingdom. They will provide updates on things that are being worked on at the Kingdom level. I will present the information during Court at each Crown event, then shortly thereafter, the information will be published in the Page, on the website, and on social media.

There are a lot of exciting things happening, especially around technology:

Event Copy Form-We have recently developed and released a Google form for submitting Page and Calendar copy for events. This will allow for much less back and forth due to forgotten/missing items and ultimately help avoid delays in publication. We have added a checklist of accessibility items to this form so the populace can make informed decisions regarding which events they can attend or what other items they may need to bring etc. Please join me in thanking Lady Bella Dona dei Sorci and Lady Dagny the Blue for their excellent work in creating this new tool for our Kingdom.

Additionally, I will be adding links to the venue's official website where available as soon as the site is booked.

*Event side note-all of the remaining 2023 events and 2024 12th Night have Event Stewards! We are now in the market for Event Stewards in 2024.

Website items:

-Issue Reporting Form-There is now a form on the website that will allow you to easily report any issues you happen to find such as broken links or inaccurate information. It is located toward the bottom of each page under Resources. This is the BEST way to get issues resolved in a timely manner. Please join me in also thanking Master Karius Hutzelman and Lord Rhys ap Gwion Baird for their excellent work in creating this new tool for our Kingdom.

-Website Overhaul-it is coming! The communications team is meeting monthly to work on this project. Be on the lookout for a very short survey regarding the current website and what you like and don't like about it. This survey will not collect any identifying information or email addresses. *Note-this project is why we haven't done much with the Volunteer Guild I have spoken of previously. We discovered in order to do what we envisioned, this work needed to be completed first. Many, many thanks to the ongoing efforts of Lady Bella Dona dei Sorci, Master Karius Hutzelman, Mistress Christina O'Riain, Lady Dagny the Blue, Lord Rhys ap Gwion Baird, and Lord William of the Red Valley on this project.

-Local group sites Beta program-Mistress Else is working diligently with several groups to build Google sites that are not only beautiful and informative, but easy to maintain and update. Thank you Mistress Else for your continued work on behalf of these groups.

Thank you all for being here. Always remember, you can be anything, be kind.

Katrina Yarbrough, OP

New Recruitments

Page Editor Deputy

Greetings WK,

Two years ago, I stepped into my West Kingdom office – bringing with me the experience of creating the kingdom newsletter for my previous kingdom. I volunteered because I wanted to get to know people in my new kingdom after my 10+ year hiatus, and I knew that editing The Page would help me connect directly with the populace.

The office I hold is the Page Manager (deputy to the Chronicler) and with the recent growth of our incredible kingdom and its events, I now need a deputy. This position works as part of our amazing Communications Team and has direct contact with all WK Officers and Royals.

Duties typically include creating newsletter layouts with your choice of software (Word, InDesign, Publisher, etc.), keeping Officer regnum current, contacting Royalty for words to the kingdom, publishing event copy and awards given, and searching for artwork to feature.

This position works under the Chroniclers regulations set forth by the SCA Organizational Handbook, and with the Communications Team – who are very supportive and fun to work with!

If you have interest in taking on this role, please send your letter of interest to Chronicler@westkingdom.org

Yours In Service,
Christina O'Riain, OP

- ⇒ This role is the main original content creator and overall manager for the monetized WK Tiktok and is a two year commitment
- ⇒ All monies earned by content creation for the WK tiktok go directly to the Kingdom
- ⇒ This role is a deputy to the Social Media Office and works as a part of the Kingdom Communications Team.

Please email SocialMedia@westkingdom.org for more info!

Yours in Service,

Bella Dona dei Sorci

From the History of the West Kingdom – How it ALL Began

Okay, this is approximately the way Diana told it (as recounted by Dorothea of Caer-Myrddin)

Once upon a time there was a scholar who lived in an ivory tower. And in that tower lived many other scholars, who spent their time reading books and writing papers about what some other scholar had said another scholar had said *another* scholar had said they used to do in the Middle Ages.

But the scholar of whom I speak was more fortunate than the rest, for she used to escape from the tower from time to time and go down into the town, where she met many interesting people. And some of these folk belonged to a tribe called "fandom," and they too read many books and wrote many papers, and they published them in loose journals printed on coarse wood-pulp paper. And the scholar, who had some skill as an artist, drew pictures of knights and ladies and elves and dragons, and these appeared in the wood-pulp paper journals.

And in this tribe were two young men with whom the scholar became acquainted; and they were beautiful young men, one dark and one fair, and both with eyes the color of summer heaven.

And on a day the scholar went to visit the young men in their home, and she saw hanging on the wall two bright swords and two well-wrought shields emblazoned with devices of heraldry. And she said, "What do you do with those?"

And the young men replied, "WE FIGHT WITH THEM."

And the scholar said, "How splendid. Next time you practice, I shall come and draw pictures of you."

And on many a day the young men met to practice their skills with sword and shield, and the scholar covered many sheets of wood-pulp paper with their likenesses.

Then there came the day when the scholar stepped out of her own house into her back yard, and the thought came to her,

"You could hold a tournament here.

"Look! Here the fighters could fight, and here the spectators could sit, and if there were too many of them some of them could stand behind the wall there, safe from random blows. You could do it. You could hold a tournament here."

And she thought, "How delightful!" But she also bethought her that she had her Master's orals coming up in two weeks, and going back into her kitchen, she said to her housemates,

"I've had the most wonderful idea. TALK ME OUT OF IT!"

And she told her housemates her idea, and they all answered, "That's wonderful! We'll all help!"

And so they chose the First of May as the date of the tournament, and they caused to be printed on many sheets of wood-pulp paper the message, "Come to a Tournament—for that it is spring." And the message was broadcast all round the ivory tower and the town besides.

And on the day, at the stroke of noon, being the time set to begin the tournament, the scholar set foot outside her door, and there was no one there.

And half an hour later, she stepped outside her door again, and there were fifty people there.

Then came Jon deCles in the robes of an Archbishop, and intoned, "Ecce Eduardus Ursus nunc occipite post Christophorum Robinem tump-tump-tump scalis descendens," and all sang "Amen."

And Elizabeth Pope, Doctor of Philosophy, was named Judge of the Lists, and the knights and squires came forth to do battle, and many brave deeds of swordplay were seen.

And young David the Herald fought so well that Sir Siegfried von Hoeflisckkeit dubbed him Knight there upon the field.

And Marynel of Darkhaven, being then but young, had bidden her father Beverly Hodghead to come to the place half an hour after she did, in case she wished to return home; but when he saw the noble company and the deeds that were being done, he hurried home and returned again in haste, bringing the crossbow that he had made for himself. And he fired a bolt against one of the shields, and behold! the point curled up upon itself like a little shell.

And a certain Knight was named victor, and he crowned his Lady with a wreath of roses.

And then all said to one another, "What shall we do next?" And it was answered generally thus, "This is Berkeley. Should we not be protesting something?" And they marched up and down Telegraph Avenue protesting the ugliness of the twentieth century, from which they had escaped that day.

And then, passing by the market, they bought roasted chickens and bottles of wine, and returning to the field of the tournament, they built a fire and sat around it, eating chickens and drinking wine and telling tales, long into the night.

And the scholar, sitting by the fire, said to herself, "This happened. This really happened. The Last Tournament *wasn't* in 1839, it happened today; and someday, years from now, I shall be able to tell my grandchildren that once, just once long ago, this happened."

But the man seated beside her was saying to the man next to him, "Now, *next* time I'm going to hit him like THIS!"
