

The Ambassadors

Signs of a Peer

NOVEMBER 2025 A.S. LX [60] VOLUME 12 EDITION
OFFICIAL NEWSLETTER FOR THE KINGDOM OF GLEANN ABHANN

the HORNS OF FATE SOUND

*From Their Royal Majesties, James and Christine, King and Queen of Gleann Abhann
The winds rise, the drums thunder, Stormborn of Gleann Abhann—Stand and hear us speak! Not with whispers, but with the voice of storm and steel!*

Our Coronation, graciously hosted by the Barony of Grey Niche, remains a shining memory—it was perfect in every way. We thank the autocrats, staff, and every single soul who labored to ensure the day was worthy of our Kingdom. From this strong foundation, our reign begins, built upon the same spirit that endured the deep waters.

We thank our loyal friends from abroad, Calontir and Trimaris, for traveling to celebrate the crowning of our strength. We extend a salute of deepest honor to Her Royal Majesty, Bronach of Kildare, whose presence illuminated our Court, carrying the glory of Trimaris across the borders to grace our celebration. May the road always rise to meet you.

To our incredible and tireless Royal Entourage, your loyalty and love are the twin pillars of our Court. Thank you for your support.

We are exceedingly proud to announce the formal elevation of new Peers who now walk among the legends. Congratulations to Mistress Katerina and Master Robert! Your dedication, skill, and honor are exemplary, and your entry into the Peerage is a moment of deep pride for all of Gleann Abhann. We congratulate all those announced for future honors; your deeds are recognized, and your names will be remembered.

And now, the hour of trial soon returns. The time for the next great contest of arms is swiftly approaching, upon which the Kingdom's fate and legacy will be decided by the clash of steel and the proving of hearts. The call is not merely a formality; it is a summons to destiny. Crown List approaches. Crown List calls to you. Will you answer this call?

While the call of the shield wall is loud, the strength of our Kingdom lies in our kinship. We look forward to meeting with you all and strengthening our bonds. Watch for announcements of social hours at upcoming events where we can set aside the sword and simply meet and mingle with friends throughout the day.

*We are Stormborn. Our strength is Unshaken. Our will is Unyielding. Our future is Unbroken.
In faith and with love,*

James
King

Christine Queen

O you who bear sword and honor— You who ride with wolves, who feast with fire in your veins, who know the weight of mail and the song of steel— Hear now the voice of your King and Queen!

The Crown calls.

The sky darkens.

The horns of fate sound once more,
And the gates of destiny groan open.
The time of choosing will soon be upon us.

Who among you will rise? Who will dare stand on the sacred field,

Where honor is tested, and kings are forged in noble combat?

We summon not the faint-hearted, but those whose blood burns with ancient thunder, Shield-brothers, sword-sisters, those who know The weight of oaths and the hunger for glory!

Raise your weapons! Call upon the ancient legacy of fate, and let your courage echo from mountain to sea, for only the fiercest shall wear the Crown of Gleann Abhann!

Come forth, champions.

Let your consort's name be your battle cry! Let your deeds be sung by skalds for generations yet unborn! Let the gods of war look down and nod in approval as you carve your worth upon the bones of the earth!

The Ravens circle. The Wolves wait. The gods watch. The ancestors stir. It is the season when glory may be won or lost. It is the hour for warriors to write their names in legend. Crown List rises.

The Crown is not given. It is earned, in sweat and struggle, in bruises and broken breath, in moments when your soul is laid bare before gods and mortals alike.

By our words, By our blood, By our deeds,

By the dream we all defend—

We, the King and Queen of Gleann
Abhann,

CALL YOU TO THE LIST!

Greetings from your temporary emergency replacement chronicler hologram,
Last issue was under a lot of time pressure, and I was not able to take a moment to thank Baroness Alienor de Ryggeby for her hard work and dedication to the Ambassador over the past few years. It is a difficult job, but under her guidance, the Ambassador never looked better. Her artistic skills took our Kingdom’s newsletter to new heights. We have big shoes to fill!

With that said, I am happy to announce that Baroness Ellyn Heath of Hemingford Grey has signed on as my deputy and will be taking the reins of the Ambassador in the near future. Baroness Ellyn was chronicler for the Barony of Seleone and Caer Dunn and was the winner of the Society’s William Blackfox award for layout and design. Her work is fabulous, and I can’t wait to see her ideas for our Kingdom’s newsletter take off.

Crash Course in Heraldry Kingdom Arms & Personal Arms

Have you ever been at an SCA event and felt completely transported? That shiver of stepping back in time? A huge part of that magic is heraldry, the pageantry of banners, shields, and personal devices.

These aren't just pretty pictures. They are the living history of our society, each one telling a story. A knight's emblazoned shield, a baron's magnificent banner, or a simple pennon flapping in the breeze—each is a vibrant piece of who we are in the Current Middle Ages. They bring the glory of the past to life and make us feel like we're part of something truly grand and timeless. The next time you see a field of colorful banners or a person proudly wearing their device, take a moment to appreciate the magic they bring to our world. It's a key part of the illusion, the pageantry that makes the SCA so special.

Just like a good story has a plot and characters, heraldry has a system of rules that give it meaning and structure. These aren't just for show; they ensure that every coat of arms is unique and easily recognizable from a distance, which was a matter of life and death on the medieval battlefield. In the SCA, following these rules is what makes our heraldry feel so authentic.

Here's a look at some of Gleann Abhann's Heraldic Laws:

Article 1.

Arms of Gleann Abhann Section 1.01

The Royal Arms of the Sovereign shall be: Per pale gules and sable, a ram rampant within a laurel wreath and in chief a coronet argent.

A. These arms may be borne by the Crown Prince, differenced with a label argent.

Section 1.02

The Royal Arms of the Consort shall be: Per pale gules and sable, a ram rampant within a wreath of roses and in chief a coronet argent.

A. These arms may be borne by the Crown Princess, differenced with a label argent.

Section 1.03

The Royal Arms of the Kingdom, Consort or Their heirs shall not be displayed, save in the Their Presence or as the symbols of Their Presence. Section

APPROPRIATE USE OF THE POPULACE BADGE

An excellent example of a personal device, this happens to be the newest Pelican of Gleann Abhann device. Congratulations, Maestro Juan Carlos, on this distinguished achievement!

Per bend sinister gules and sable,

Section 1.04

The Badge of Gleann Abhann shall be: fieldless, a ram clymant argent, which all subjects of Gleann Abhann are entitled to bear or display.

A. All branches of the Kingdom of Gleann Abhann are entitled to display, at any official event, the Badge of Gleann Abhann.

"Please note that nowhere in these designs do you see a "wreath" or a "coronet" being used, which is exactly how it should be. The "laurel wreath" is a RESERVED and RESTRICTED charge used exclusively to denote an official SCA Branch, or the HEAD of an official SCA Branch. It can not, and should not, be used or displayed by just "anybody". Likewise, a "wreath/chaplet of roses" and a "crown/coronet" have very specific meanings as well, and their use is highly restricted. If you have any doubts or concerns about what you are actually eligible to display, please contact either your local herald/pursuivant, or the Diamond Herald, for assistance and guidance in this matter." - gleannabhann.net

The Rule of Tincture

This is the most fundamental rule. It states that you cannot place a metal on a metal, or a color on a color. This ensures a high-contrast, visible design.

Metals are Or (gold/yellow) and Argent (silver/white).

Colors are Azure (blue), Gules (red), Sable (black), Vert (green), and Purpure (purple).

For example, you can't have a blue lion on a green field, but a blue lion on a gold field is perfectly acceptable. This rule makes SCA heraldry pop and makes it immediately identifiable.

Charges and Postures

The symbols placed on a shield are called charges. These can be anything from animals and plants to geometric shapes. To be heraldically correct, charges must be stylized and two-dimensional, not realistic or "photographic."

Animals have specific postures that describe their position, like a lion rampant (standing on one hind leg) or a wolf passant (walking).

Uniqueness

Your heraldic device is your personal emblem. It must be unique and not conflict with any other registered device in the SCA or with a well-known historical or modern symbol. This prevents confusion and ensures your identity is distinct. The SCA College of Arms maintains a database of all registered names and armory to prevent duplicates.

By following these guidelines, SCA heralds and members create beautiful, meaningful, and historically plausible art that truly brings the Middle Ages to life
