It is time to chant from the sage’s seat, at the spring of Urðr. I saw and I was silent, I saw and I pondered, I listened to the speech of men, I heard them discuss runes. They weren’t silent with counsels at Hávi’s hall. In Hávi’s hall, I heard it said thus . . .

Come and hear the saga of King Thorri, son of Fornjot, who held a sacrifice every year at midwinter that the people called Thorri’s sacrifice; from that the month of Porri, which some people now call January, took its name.

Join the Shire of Stonegate and our partners from the Idaho State University Medieval Club for Porrablót, an Icelandic mid-winter feast and skaldic celebration of Viking* heritage and culture. Feast with us on Viking fare, play Viking games, and learn something new about Viking culture and arts.

We encourage skalds and bards to come before the populace to recite poems and sing songs in honor of Thor.

In the spirit of Thorri and his sacrifice for the good of the community, this gathering will be of no cost to the attendees, including the feast.

ABOUT EQUESTRIAN INSURANCE

In order for equestrian activities to be covered by the SCA's Equestrian Insurance, it must be activated for each event or practice where the activities take place. Insurance Certificates must be ordered at least 30 days in advance of the date of the event, or of the date of the first occurrence of a regularly-scheduled practice. Use the most recent version of the Ordering Instructions available at www.sca.org/insurance.

The process is slightly different for practices vs. events:

Equestrian Practices

An insurance certificate is required for practices. If your group holds regularly scheduled practices, you can order a single certificate which will be good for the entire period during which practices will be held, for up to an entire calendar year (January - December). For example, let's say the Barony of X holds equestrian practice every Wednesday from 6:00 pm to 10:00 pm at the same location. One certificate is all that is needed for this recurring practice – on the certificate request, the Barony will specify the dates involved (yes, you must actually look at a calendar and write down the date of every Wednesday), from 6:00 pm to 10:00 pm. Pay the required fee, and you're good to go for an entire (calendar) year of equestrian practices.

In order for this to work, the following must be true:

1. the exact dates must be known in advance and specified. The dates need not fall on the same day of the week, but all applicable dates must be listed;
2. the time must be specified, and be for no more than a 12 hour period; such as: Saturdays (list dates), 8:00 am to 5:00 pm; and
3. the location must always be the same.

What WONT work: specifying entire weekends, or periods of more than 12 hours' continuous duration. Activities of this length are no longer practices, but Events. You also may not simply specify "every day". You need to actually schedule your regular practices in order to be able to insure them under a single certificate – this requires some planning on your group's part.

If your practice site changes, or if the dates or specified times of your practice changes, you will need a new certificate, which will need to be paid for anew.

Equestrian Events

Events differ from practices in that they are usually of longer duration, and usually have other activities in addition to equestrian activities. Events are advertised as such in SCA newsletters or other appropriate media. Events can range from a single-day event to a multi-week long Interkingdom War. A single insurance certificate is needed for each event, regardless of its duration.

If you have any questions, please contact us and we'll be happy to assist you.

Kind Regards,

Louise Du Cray
VP for Corporate Operations

In Latin, harena was the term for a sandy place. Evolving into the French arène, Italian rena, and Spanish arena, the frequent use of the word was for the enclosed space in an amphitheater where sand was used to soak up blood. Thus the development of the current English word arena for a location for a contest of some kind. And now you know more random carp.
