From Their Majesties

Unto the Populace of Ealdormere

The leaves have started to change and the crisp breeze that marks the start of winter has arrived. We have stepped up to the sovereign thrones of the North and it could not have happened in a fashion that better suited Us. There were horses and a hunt, and the rains remained at bay enough for these elements to play together. Many thanks to their newly minted Graces Evander and Marioun for being such good sports and indulging in a hunt, despite any potential dangers.

Now that the Line of the North has advanced, We look to winter activities such as tournaments. We would like to congratulate Duke Edward the Red for winning the first leg of the triplet ournament challenge in both the fencing and the heavy lists, and to extend Our thanks to The Honorable Lord Bjarn for crafting the prizes for both tournaments. We hope to see many of you at the remaining tournaments in the series. They will take place at the Feast of the Hare and Tournoi.

We look forward to witnessing the continuation of the Line of the North at Crown tournament on October 19th in the Barony of Ramshaven. The combatants and consorts for the tournament will be:

Sir Brand Thorwaldsson for Duchess Jocea Valente
Sir Aelfwyn et Langanwuda for Duchess Adrielle Kerrec
Sir Guillaume le Breton for Countess Jolecia of Litchfield
Sir Gannicus the Hibernian for Mistress Maegwynn Skrautibrok
Sir Tiberius of Warwickshire for Mistress Anne Tinker
Sir Richard Larmer for Mistress Annabelle Makmyllane
The Honourable Lord Mattius of Petrea Thule for the Honourable Lord Jack Mungo the Pyrate
The Honourable Lord Jack Mungo the Pyrate for the Honourable Lord Mattius of Petrea Thule

Finally, We would like to extend Our thanks to everyone who attended and helped with Our coronation day – specifically the Barony of Rising Waters which organized the event. Everyone pulled together to create a great day for all.

Happy Hunting,
Chrispin & Anne,

Hear me, Hear me, King Crispin and Queen Anne, 71st of the land's sovereigns, the names of your line, and marvel at the glory of the north!

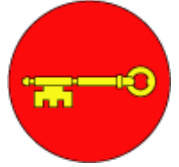

Before you sat King Evander II, trusted and trusting, and Marioun II, banner flowing free and strong.
Before you sat King Baldric II, the golden-hearted, and Breyla II, welcoming all to her domain.
Before him sat King Steinna II, eyes cast far afield, and Margraig, giving from garden and glen.
Before him sat Queen Kaylah V, Sun-Queen, shining her light to all corners of the kingdom, and Trumbrand V, Hearth-King
Before her sat King Roak VII, sure-handed steersman sailing before the winter gale, and Hyrrokin II, calling us home.
Before him sat King Rattanicus the constant north star, and Isabel, the lucent moon, guiding us through the night.
Before him sat Queen Kaylah IV, sovereign by her own hand, beautiful and inevitable as the dawn, and Trumbrand IV, eyes cast to the sun.
Before her sat King Roak VI, wise as the elk, unchanging as the oak, and Hyrrokin I, the welcome summer breeze
Before him sat King Evander I, hand set to virtue, and Marioun I, hospitality and heart overflowing
Before him sat King Baldric I, gift giver to the wolf pack, and Breyla I, her laughter ringing upon the list.
Then came the time of the second decade of our Kingdom of Ealdormere, with our sovereigns right mindful of their birthright, standing tall and proud.
Then sat King Edward III, long striding master of the hall and Rylyn III, keen eyed towards the order of things.
Before him sat King Quilliam IV, soft spoken liege, and Tangwystl, wolf queen at last come home.
Before him sat King Siegfried II, arms bare and hands open, beside Xristina, ever elegant.
Before him sat King Nigel III, keeper of treasures, and Adrielle III, Iron Queen of distant lands, her gifts most precious.
Before him sat King Quilliam III, wave-washed, and Domhnail II, crafting her kingdom.
Before him sat King Steinna I, his back to sunset, and Liör, twice-chosen.
Before him sat King Trumbrand III who counts autumns bounty and Kaylah III firm in resolve.
Before him sat King Siegfried I, whose sword deals justice, beside Ragni, hall-hostess.
Before him sat King Nigel II, who holds what is taken, and Adrielle II, most diligent.
Before him sat King Trumbrand II, Harrow of the Summer Field, and Kaylah II, who ever steps forward.
Before him sat King Roak V, Pathfinder in the Northern Wilds, and Elizabeth, drawn to the sea.
Before him sat King Edward II, whose sword well serves, beside Rylyn II, who dreams bright dreams.
Before him sat King Quilliam II, upon whom the waves break, and Dagmar II, keeper of songs.
Before him sat King Aaron IV, who sows life to meadow and mountain, and Rustique IV, who walked a stony road.
Before him sat King Etain II, who exceeds his promises, and Valfreya II, lodestone of her land.
Before him sat King Quilliam I, Skald-King, bright beacon on the North shore, and Dagmar I, most faithful friend.
Before him sat King Nigel I, reiver richly rewarded, and Adrielle I the predestined.
Before him sat King Roak IV, his saddle a throne, and Jocea II, her bright sword unsheathed.
Before him sat King Etain I, called Etain the Proud, transfused with glory, and Valfreya I, who knows not her own merits.
Before him sat King Aaron III, whose tread shakes the Northland, and Rustique III, fruitful and well-loved.
Then our lineage is traced back to the first decade of our kingdom, when our crowns were new, and traditions were crafted afresh.
Then sat King Trumbrand I, oath-holder, and Kaylah I of smiles and laughter.
Before him sat King Edouard IV, enthroned in splendour, and Domhnail I, bone-hewer.
Before him sat King Roak III, close holding his homeland, and Jocea I, who bears a sheathed sword.
Before him sat King Aaron II, who holds his land with grace, and Rustique II, who laughs to lead.
Before him sat King Edward I, of the wise gaze, and Rylyn I, wolf-mother.
Before him sat King Edouard III, who knows not dusk, and Genevieve II, of the open eyes.
Before him sat King Malik, who strides the shifting sands, and Genevieve d'Anjou, twice blessed and blessing.
Before him sat King Berus II, who steers by his own stars, and Marion II, summer's well-spring.
Before him sat King Cennedi, lion destined to roar, and Susanna the thrice-proud.
Before him sat King Edouard II, who weighs his own balance, and Genevieve I, who asks and listens.
Before him sat King Roak II, come far for his birthright, and Arlette, compassionate on the glory field.
Before him sat King Sarnac, who rode to the saltless sea, and Joleicia, spring sun on ice.
Before him sat King Aaron I, baying hound of the wolf-pack, and Rustique I, faithful servant now served.
Before him sat King Roak I, the far-rider, and Carlotta, who keeps her own counsel.
Before him sat King Berus I, carved like linden, and Marion I, daughter of the raven.
Before him sat King Edouard I, who has ruled the lands of the sunrise, and Eanor of the old blood.
Before him sat King Kildare, who knows his own mind, and Josephine of the nimble fingers.
Before him sat King Osis, who reigned too few days, and Caitlin, whose tears quenched rich soil.
Before him sat King David the Greater, first King of the North, free as the deer, and Elina of the night fires.

Then came the years of our Principality, following the dragon banner of the Middle Kingdom and the crowns of the Prince and Princess symbolized the Line of the North.

Before him was the wolf, and the wilds, and the will.
There, O King, are the names of your line. Remember now the glory of the North.

From the Kingdom Seneschal

Hello sunshines!

It has been almost a year and a half since I have stepped into the role of Kingdom Seneschal, and as such I am beginning the process of seeking my successor. While I would not be stepping down until next summer, I would like to have time to work with my successor prior to the change over the office. The deadline for applications is Dec 31, 2024. Applications should include a letter of interest and your SCA and Mundane resume with relevant experience. Please send all applications to myself by email at ealdormere.kseneschal@gmail.com. Questions are welcome! If you wish to talk about the role and the responsibilities of the Kingdom Seneschal please feel free to contact me.

Full details of the Kingdom Seneschal Role are outlined in Corpora, Kingdom Law, The Seneschal's Handbook, and the Policies and Procedures of Ealdormere. In the interest of space, I won't list the duties out here.

At Coronation, the newest laws were read into court at feast. They've been repeated below as required by kingdom law.

I look forward to seeing everyone at events this autumn.

In Service,
Lucia de Moranza

A subject of Ealdormere under banishment from the royal presence or banishment from the realm retains this right.

From the Desk of the Kingdom Chronicler

Greetings Readers!

If you are interested in having a full colour edition of the Tidings (and Vox Borealis) arrive in your email inbox, I have a mailing list. Email me and ealdor-mere.kchronicler@gmail.com to get on the list and receive your copy early. A lot early. Practically a month early.

Thank you to everyone who lets me use photographs of all the coming and goings around the kingdom in these issues. I know that they really help with the capturing of the history of the Kingdom, which I have the pleasure of documenting in these pages.

I cannot use all pictures submitted, firstly I cannot if I am low on space (usually), I don't include pictures of children's faces, and the actual paper version of this newsletter is printed in black and white, so pictures that are very busy cannot always be used. If you have pictures to submit please email them to the Kingdom Chronicler account.

If you have awesome photos that do not meet these requirements, submit them to your local Baronial Chronicler, who can more likely make use, is in colour, and has no space restraint.

Joyfully Yours,
Lucia de Enzinas

From the Chatelaine

Dear Kingdom

I would like to thank and congratulate the next Chancellor of the Exchequery, Lady Catherine Rose Lamont. Also thank you to Dame Marioun of Heatherdale who is stepping into a new Kingdom Deputy role managing the Kingdom's books.

They will both be shadowing their roles until after the end of year report, after which Lady Catherine will take over my position on privy council in February 2025.

Thank you to everyone who showed an interest in the position of Kingdom Exchequer!

Thankfully Yours,
Arlette

From the Youth Fencing Martial

Greetings to Ealdormere, and especially our young members!

I'm happy to announce that Meister Wilhelm von Pottruff is taking over the job of Deputy Kingdom Marshal for Youth Fencing. He's led many practices and engaged many children with fun ways to learn to fence.

"A Fair War" by Ascelyn of Ben Dunfirth,

As Pennsic War LI was packing up and in the weeks that followed, many spoke of Ealdormere's tremendous performance in the armoured field battles on war's final day. The Middle Kingdom won the first two fights with Ealdormere at their side before we crossed the field to balance numbers. The East Kingdom, now with Ealdormere on their side, won the final three armoured engagements. From what I have been told by those more tenured than I, Ealdormere's undefeated performance in a 2-3 battle is unprecedented.

The wording shared here is the product of its author: what I find funny or touching, what words I don't like next to each other, and which stories make their way to my ears and eyes. If you take it up please do not treat the version here as sacrosanct. Always "season to taste" for your preferred performance style.

A Fair War"

They say all's fair in love and war but balance takes some work
And for all their cries we'd have fair fights that promise they did shirk
So the Trillium fought with the dragon's lot until the final day
When blue on our head and covered up red, and both sides we did play

'Twas a most harrowing Pennsic War in AS 59
At Allied Champs the cannon'd blast before they'd count the line
We levelled our spears against our peers and said we'd give them grief
But guarding a flag is such a drag when fighting without relief

As summer sun fell, Brand sat vigil well, he stayed up many hours
And Monday morn his oath was sworn to kingdom's sovereign powers
His schwenkel cut, his stirrups done up, we all went out to play
His brand new white and checky belt a target in the fray

But – town's battle would be death's rattle for the Mid once more
Rules were changed, troops rearranged, we simply couldn't score
They say bad luck will run amuk should a knight win their first bout
So relieved I felt when Sir Brand's belt notched loss on first outing out

Another day we fought away 'til dragon and tiger bored
Then Outlands dear and Calontir joined in to Midrealm chord
On day of Thor, to the woods we bore to give point flag protection
And we ran through so many in blue we saw their resurrection

They say all's fair in love and war, but balance takes some time
Fighters cannot be sold and bought without reason or rhyme
So the Trillium fought with the Dragon's lot under war neared its end
When Magnus King came wondering – could Tsar Ivan Ealdormere lend

On final day 'fore we mustered away, down to the field we went
Our spirits high, it was almost dry, our fervor not yet spent
Ground we'd gain as we rained down pain upon East Kingdom pawns
And drove their noble fighters from that hot-contested lawn

Our force so large, so strong our charge, to our good King Evander
The Eastern King, needing something, asked: "Would you mind a meander?
To my kingdom's side, though the field's wide, our numbers are quite askew
If it's quite alright we'll balance our might by taking up arms beside you."

And his Majesty thought that this offer brought a chance for more delightment
As to our swords this would afford a "target-rich environment"
Blue marks we'd receive as we could perceive a ways across the list
The Midrealm's crew from the midst of whom we'd had ourselves dismissed

Then the cannon roared and we once more charged down across the field
But when they sought balance, they forgot our talents – Dragon's allies we forced to yield
Another blast from the hill, we'd not yet our fill, though Mid thought us they'd ensnare
T'was naught they could do. We fought on right through – the list field's the white wolf's lair

We fought the full five, known world saw us thrive, scarlet cavalry on two feet
And though we'd switched sides, not one fight we lied in dismay or defeat
As the sun shone from high, under shade we did lie, having laid our foes to rest
In a battle 2-3, we'd come out loss-free, and shown we were simply the best

They say all's fair in love and war but Northfolk bend the scale
When boar and bear and ram and hare and chalice don their maille
And the Trillium fought with the dragon's lot until East Kingdom pleaded
Then the Wolf switched sides to turn the tides and fought five undefeated.

Cheers,
Ascelyn of Ben Dunfirth, Armiger

Update on New Ranged Martial Peerage

September 14, 2024 |
SCA Communications

SCA Inc. is excited to share an update on the ongoing work toward the creation of a new peerage for practitioners of the ranged missile arts. This peerage, which will recognize the dedication and skill of those in the archery, thrown weapons, and siege weaponry communities, is progressing steadily.

We would like to extend our sincere gratitude to the College of Arms for their tremendous efforts in preparing an initial option for the name and heraldry of this peerage. Their expertise and dedication have been invaluable in shaping this important recognition.

We also want to thank everyone who has taken the time to provide feedback thus far. Your input is vital in ensuring that this new peerage truly reflects the values and identity of this community. We continue to encourage all members to share their thoughts and perspectives as we refine this proposal.

The Board of Directors is committed to a transparent and inclusive process as possible. In keeping with this, the Board will consider the College of Arms' primary proposal alongside other options that will be submitted. This will occur at the same time to keep things moving forward as swiftly as possible.

We are listening to our membership and the communities involved, and the Board is eager to move forward with a decision that honors the contributions of those who excel in the ranged missile arts.

Thank you for your continued engagement in this process.
