From Their Royal Majesties

Greetings from Sven and Iseabail!

We would like to start by giving Our deepest thanks to Our predecessors, Tryggr and Mercedes. We are most especially grateful for the time and attention Her Majesty Mercedes spent with Us as a new Princess. Our time together at Gulf Wars was invaluable.

We are excited for the Sven-Ish reign of fun. We will report on Our time at West/An Tir War in the next issue, and We are eagerly anticipating attending Pennsic LI (51). We won't disclose our alliance here, lest it become known and put the fear of Caid into the Knowne World.

In the spirit of fun, please know that We will be looking out for those groups and individuals that, through kindness, generosity and excellence, help make Our Dream a reality.

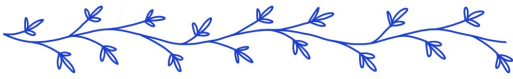

Yours, In Service to the Dream,

~We rule because you believe~

From the Kingdom Seneschal

Greetings!

Coronation is upon us and it is a time to celebrate the reign of Their Majesties Tryggr and Mercedes and welcome in the reign of TRHs Sven and Iseabail. Hopefully you can make it out to the Barony of Lyondemere for this joyous occasion.

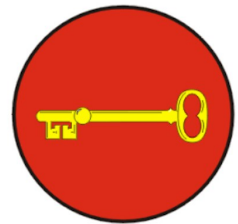

We should also take time to recognize the SCA runs on the dedication, energy and time of our volunteers. These people help keep our group moving forward by serving in roles in many of our different administrative offices. We are incredibly thankful for all the people who have donated their time and energy over the years and especially during this last year.

If you are interested in volunteering, either at the local level or the kingdom level, please reach out and see how you can help. Both my office and the territorial seneschals are a good place to start if you are interested in stepping into an office or helping as a deputy.

Finally, as a reminder, for those considering entering Crown Tournament in September, please be aware Privy Council returns to the day after the tournament. The victors of the day are required to attend Privy Council, so plan accordingly.

This reset of the Kingdom Calendar will provide the opportunity for the new Heirs to be informed of the status of the kingdom and meet all the officers and landed baronage prior to stepping up. In addition, Consort's Champion will be returning to the day after Coronation in 2025.

In Service,
Laertes
Kingdom Seneschal

From the Kingdom Chronicler

Greetings Caid!

We begin the second half of our year. New Sovereign and Consort, new event season and yet another Pennsic to try and figure out if your travel court garb can survive mud, humidity AND sun bleaching!

We have camping this month in addition to Coronation, fighting, Arts and Sciences, and Interkingdom events. LOTS to do! See what fits within your means and your pursuits of happiness.

As a Laurel, I try to encourage/foster/promote forays into the Arts and Sciences as they were practiced in the times we recreate/study/enjoy. And as such, I want to remind you that the next Pentathlon is less than a year away. If you are staying indoors, blissfully assailed by your air conditioner, consider researching some nifty thing that interests you. Who knows, might be fun!

Finally, this marks the end of the first year I have had the position of Kingdom Chronicler. I am really enjoying this different aspect of service to our Kingdom and Society and am very thankful to all of you for your support. So, any artwork or articles you care to share?

In Service to Kingdom and Society, I remain ever faithfully,

Beorn of the Northern Sea

Five distinct types of wine vessels in Hellenistic Greece

By Duke Wilhelm Skallagrimsson, KSCA

Wine was a significant part of ancient Greek culture, and the vessels used to store, serve, and consume wine played an essential role in Hellenistic Greece. Wine vessels were not only practical objects but also served as status symbols and cultural artifacts. This article will explore five distinct types of wine vessels in Hellenistic Greece: amphoras, kraters, kylixes, oinochoes, and rhytons.

Amphora

Amphoras were one of the most common types of wine vessels in Hellenistic Greece. These large jars had a narrow neck and two handles on either side for easy transportation. They were primarily used for storing and transporting wine from the vineyards to various destinations within Greece and abroad. Amphoras came in different shapes, sizes, and decorative styles depending on their origin.

Krater

Kraters held immense social significance in Greek society as they were used during symposia or drinking parties. These large mixing bowls were designed explicitly for diluting wine with water before it was consumed by guests at banquets or gatherings. The shape of kraters varied from shallow bowls to deeper containers with wide mouths, facilitating the adequate mixing of the liquids.

Kylix

Kylixes were shallow drinking cups primarily used during symposia or formal banquets where men gathered to drink wine together. These cups had a unique shape with two horizontal handles attached to opposite sides for ease of use while engaging in social interactions during these events. Kylixes often featured ornate decorations on their inner surfaces, such as scenes from mythology or everyday life.

Oinochoe

Oinochoes played a crucial role in pouring wine into smaller individual cups during meals or rituals involving libations towards gods or ancestors. They typically had a slender neck leading to a spout, which allowed controlled pouring without spillage. Various oinochoe designs, such as trefoil-mouthed or piriform-shaped vessels, are noted. Their handle attachment and ornamentation varied depending on the region of production.

Rhyton

Rhytons were fascinating horn-shaped vessels used for ceremonial libations or pouring offerings to gods during religious rituals and feasts. These vessels, often made from precious metals or pottery, would have intricate designs. Sometimes, they took the form of animal heads or human figures at the top, emphasizing their symbolic significance in Greek mythology and religious practices.

Wine vessels played a significant role in Hellenistic Greek culture. Amphoras served the practical purpose of storing and transporting wine, while kraters facilitated social interactions during symposia. Kylixes were used for individual drinking cups at banquets, and oinochoes were employed for pouring wine into smaller containers. Finally, rhytons had a symbolic meaning in religious ceremonies and feasts. These various vessel types reflect societal values related to drinking and reveal insights into ancient Greek customs and traditions. The influence of Hellenistic Greek wine vessel designs can be seen in subsequent cultures adopting similar forms for their pottery traditions. These vessels' elegant shapes and decorative elements influenced later ceramic styles across regions and periods. Additionally, the use of wine vessels as symbols of wealth and status continued to be prevalent throughout history.

Guess who's back, back again. St. Corrigan's back, tell a friend. If you enjoy our shenanigans, then this is our ultimate shenanigan event. Come and enjoy a weekend of fun, games, and silliness.

Theme: Getting lost is half the fun.

Saturday's activities include all the normal scenarios: sack the town, sheep rugby, gnome tossing, hunker houser, bouncy joust, bowling (bring your favorite wooden bowls!), youth activities and more!

Arts and Sciences theme: Things you might want with you if you are lost. Ex: A map (calligraphy and illustration), clothing (sewing, garb making), high visibility (trim, candle making), liquid libations (brewing), weapons (wood working or metallurgy).
