Outgoing Royal Majesties

Greeting Caid!

The end of Our Reign is near, and We are excited to see everyone at the upcoming anniversaries. Coronation is just around the corner and We are looking forward to handing over the keys to the Kingdom.

Before this though, We would like to take the time to say thank you to the populace of Caid. It has been a wild ride! This journey has taught Us so much about this Kingdom we call home and we've grown a deep love for Caid having now presided over it as your Monarchs. We stepped up to an uncertain populace and We can only hope that We've done some measure of good during Our tenure and have won more than a few of your hearts and minds.

As We pass on this station to our Heirs, We leave with a reverence for Crown and Kingdom, and memories to cherish. Thank you, Caid, for taking this journey with Us; it has been an honor and the thrill of a lifetime.

From Their Incoming Royal Majesties

Greetings, Caid!

It has already been an incredible journey throughout Our Kingdom and what a pleasure it has been. We have had the honor of witnessing art and service beyond compare, unparalleled martial prowess at every level, elevations into positions of responsibility and members of the populace stepping willingly into challenging roles and We are looking forward to seeing you at Our Coronation this month. What an incredible Kingdom We live in and We can't help but think how fortunate We are to be part of it and work with all of you. We see you and your voice matters.

Wait, that's period? Aw crap!

By Baron Beorn of the Northern Sea, OL

Well hello and how are you Caid? It has been a “hot minute,” as the kids say, since last this column came to the fore. And I must admit, without any malice or ill-will, that COVID does, in fact, suck. A lot! As in, even allegedly asymptomatic (as in, no breathing problems, no fever, no loss of smell, and no congestion) it was akin to a constant, annoying, all-over the body beating until it wasn't. Now, many of us hereabouts engage in SCA combat, and as such, a MOST of the body beating happens from time to time (unless we are blocking QUITE well). But ALL of the body? Zero out of ten, do NOT recommend!

Now where were we? I believe we were engaged in a series of “that's period?” articles (except for the Meanie McMeanerton from Meansville article I did for April as an April Fools' column)<sup>1</sup> and then I had a bit of ‘the ‘rona’ and Her Excellency Briana kindly asked me to take a bit to get well (she really is the best boss!). And thus, wellness managed, it allows us once again to delve into the odd or unusual episodes that actually happened in our era(s) of pursuit! But, a bit of a warning for this topic: this is a rather crude one, and as such, reader discretion is advised.

One of the most interesting, and yet least glamorous, ways that we can find out about the daily life of our predecessors is by going through cesspits and middens. In particular from human waste. By looking at this paleofeces (which may occasionally be called coprolites)<sup>2</sup> we can determine what they ate and even the relative health of the individual due to consistency and the presence of intestinal parasites (which ALWAYS seem to be present [please, everyone, cook your food]). I don't mean to be gross, and I certainly hope you're not reading this pdf file whilst breakfasting with the members of your squash group at the racquetball club<sup>3</sup>. Nevertheless, the removal of human waste from one's dwelling as efficiently and with the greatest sanitation has been a goal of civilization as long as civilization has strived to be civil.

Dedicated “Toilets” (from 16th century French toilette ‘small cloth’ or covering for clothes to protect them while dressing/doing hair/shaving, which then came to mean a table-cloth expressly to protect your clothes while arranged on a dressing table or valet, and only in the 19th century meant a dressing room, wash room, or bathroom) have been around for about 5000 years. And the first place that we see them is not, as one would assume, in Mesopotamia or Asia or Africa, rather, in Scotland. As near as we can tell, the Neolithic site of Skara Brae in the Orkneys has the earliest rooms (yes, plural) with functional toilets, including working drains and plumbing to send the waste away from the settlement. The plumbing for the site is quite advanced, and apparently worth the trouble since it was a great deal of effort for a population of only between 50-90 people. How effective was the waste disposal system you ask? This site was abandoned thousands of years ago, and was only rediscovered in the mid 19th century, and yet, ALL of the coprolites found at the settlement are from canines. No human paleofeces of any kind has been found.

By 1700 BCE, the rest of the ancient world had caught up to Scotland (how weird to write that phrase), and eventually the latrines used in Crete, Egypt, Rome, and the Indian subcontinent were either clay or stone pans or seats with holes in the center that funneled to large stone or terracotta pipes leading waste materials away from the structure. The Baths of Caracalla, the second largest bathhouse in Rome<sup>4</sup>, were constructed in the early 3rd century CE and said to allow over a thousand people to use them at a time. And, that was the basic level of technology for centuries. That is, until a revolutionary invention by an English gentleman, and godson to Queen Elizabeth I, Sir John Harrington (and the fellow responsible for this particular installment of “Wait, that's period?”).

Sir John invented the Flush Toilet. In 1596, he wrote and published A New Discourse of a Stale Subject, Called the Metamorphosis of Ajax<sup>5</sup> in which he detailed the flush toilet he had installed at his home. In addition, he installed another at Queen Liz's abode at Richmond Palace. It was a seat with an attached tank. After use, you pulled a lever that let water out of the tank which washed down the material in the bowl under the seat away into the attached pipes and then from the chamber. You read that correctly; in ALL of Britain, in the late 16th century, there were a grand total of TWO (2) flushing toilets for the roughly 4 million residents. Wow, no wonder the Brits are so good at Queueing! It carried a design flaw which prevented widespread implementation. The “S-bend” prevalent in the plumbing of modern toilets creates an air pocket which traps odors and prevents the smell from offending the user. However, that wasn't invented until 1775 by the Scottish inventor Alexander Cumming (again with the Scots!). And so, we were instead left to deal with hurling chamberpot contents out onto the street (and the origin on the British term for bathroom, the Loo [a British contraction of the French term "gardez l'eau" or 'watch out for the water]).

Wait, that's period? Aw crap!

So, many terms we use today are post-period; though the more archaic terms still resonate through the SCA, such as privy (I mean, anachronisms, amirite?). Euphemisms really started when culture got squeamish, modest or moral. After all, one of the earlier terms for a place to remove human waste was called a necessarium or 'necessary house/room' because it is a necessary human function. NOT doing it, can lead to death. Heck, and doing it without being able to stop also leads to death (how many times did YOU 'die of dysentery' on The Oregon Trail video game?). But, there was a time when just doing it led to a horrible death! Let's end this article with the thrilling Erfurt Latrine Disaster!

In late summer, 1184CE, Future Holy Roman Emperor, Henry VI, King of Germany, held an assembly to mediate a dispute between Landgrave Louis III of Thuringia in central Germany, and Archbishop Conrad of Mainz. All told, nearly 100 people were invited to help advise the two sides as to how to stop the feud. After the assembly was seated at the Petersberg Citadel, the wooden floor gave way from the mass of people, and dozens of people fell into the latrine pool in the basement. Henry VI survived because he was on a stone portion of the floor, but between drowning in the cesspool, or suffocating from the noxious fumes, or being crushed by the rotting wood and falling masonry, roughly 60 people were killed. So, remember this the next time you are dreading a Zoom meeting, or a boring lecture, or a Laurel Council meeting!

Thank you all for your patience last month, and I promise, a more uplifting and pleasant topic for August!

<sup>1</sup> - It wasn't meant as a mean spirited article, but so many people sing "Mon coeur se recommande à vous" in the SCA (and, heck, most any high school and/or college choir since the early 20th century) that it was like one of those memes where the tagline is 'I felt personally attacked'. I was just trying to educate, honest!

<sup>2</sup> - I had no intention of spending THIS much time researching ancient poop, but, then again, having been to Jorvik and seeing the impressive coprolite on display there (I guess vikings really WERE 'living it large?'), I confess that I thought ALL ancient droppings were called coprolites (from the Greek meaning 'dung' and 'stone'). And that is actually true. All fossilized fecal remains ARE coprolites, whereas human fossilized remains are also called paleofeces. We're so special we get a second name for our stuff! To be fair, sometimes when it is fossilized it is a coprolite, and sometimes when organic material can be extracted it is paleofeces, so... now you know?

<sup>3</sup> - Okay, so when I wrote this pithy saying and forwarded it to one of my erudite friends, they immediately informed me that squash and racquetball are not interchangeable as they use different courts with different dimensions, different balls, and one uses a racket and the other a racquet. Jeez, I was just trying to be pithy.

<sup>4</sup> - The Baths of Diocletian, while slightly larger (around 32 acres) and able to serve more people in the baths and saunas (one claim states up to 3000 people at a time), apparently did not have as many latrines and was more about pleasure than function.

<sup>5</sup> - The article had several puns and plays on words, and subsequently created two of the slang terms for toilets: the John (from Sir John), and the Jacks (from Ajax and his name for the flushing toilet). As a matter of fact, Sir John's penchant for biting satire within the article caused him a falling out with Her Majesty Elizabeth as he made very unsubtle statements as to the poisonous excrement infesting royal court being the Queen's favorite, the Earl of Leicester. It is believed the ONLY reason he was merely banished from the court and NOT arrested was due to her position as his godmother.

From the Kingdom Seneschal

Greetings!

I hope you take the opportunity this month to join the kingdom at Coronation. It's a great opportunity to get caught up with people you may not have seen in a while, along with celebrating the start of a new reign.

In the meantime, are you someone who loves the rich history of the Kingdom of Caid and would like to help maintain and grow these records for the generations that follow? The current Archivist, Master Aldred von Lechsend aus Froschheim, is stepping down for a well-earned rest and we need a new Kingdom Archivist.

The Kingdom Archivist role is to process, catalogue and preserve the collection of Caid History: written documents, and artifacts from our SCA lives past, present and in the future. The Archivist preserves and makes accessible information in our collection to others in our kingdom, as well as inquiries from the corporate office. While it would be ideal for the Archivist to store the files, we do have an option for storage at a facility. This office reports to the Kingdom Seneschal and must have access to the internet and basic home office equipment.

Essential duties and responsibilities of the job include, but are not limited to:

- Maintain the repository, as it grows.
- Catalogue and keep current the repository.
- Receiving tangible items for possible integration to the current repository.
- Consolidating existing files.

If you are interested in stepping into this position, please contact this office at seneschal.officer@sca-caid.org.

In Service,
Master Laertes McBride
Kingdom Seneschal

Greetings, Caid!

July is Coronation month; always a time of change in our fair Kingdom. This month, after almost two years of service as your Kingdom Chronicler, I am handing the reins over to my deputy, Master Beorn of the Northern Sea. A bardic Laurel, Master Beorn has been contributing articles to the Crown Prints during my entire tenure as Chronicler and has been an invaluable consultant on several content matters throughout my time. I look forward to seeing what he and the entire Caid Chronicler team can do during their time in office.

Before I go, I want to thank everyone I worked with during my time as Chronicler; this is most definitely not a one-person job! Beyond Master Beorn, I wish to personally thank all of the baronial chroniclers for their hard work on their local newsletters every month, my content editors, Viscount Sir Morven of Carrick and Mistress Fia Naheed, for their close and effective editing, my Crown Prints editor, milady Amanda of Gyldenholt for making my life so much easier by taking over Crown Prints construction the last few months, Master Sigiborn Sigmundarson for ensuring event announcements make it up on the Book of Faces in a timely manner, THL Sárán mac Duinn for helping ensure events are scheduled properly and THL Kyra Audux, my right-hand woman who ensures that event announcements are complete and posted on the Kingdom Calendar in a timely manner.

Last but not least, I want to thank all of the event stewards and local officers who made sure we have the info we need to publish your events so Caid's populace can enjoy our full and robust calendar of events throughout the year. Teamwork truly makes the Dream work and I am honored to have worked with each and everyone of you.

ARTS & SCIENCES CHAMPION COMPETITION: Baron Ramvoldus has created 5 distinct riddles. To enter the competition, answer these riddles with your art!

Riddle #1: I have one good eye, but still cannot see. I get to wear the finest clothes that are never made for me.

Riddle #2: You will find me equally in darkness and light. My bark is not loud, but with metal I bite.

Riddle #3: Over and over I'm stabbed or kicked on the ground, I still hold value even as I'm thrown around

Riddle #4: In front or behind I do not change, but turned on my head I'm no longer the same

Riddle #5: Whatever your art form let it ring true, the only one who can answer this one is you. (Wildcard)

Scribal Playday (Darach)

WHEN: Saturday, July 22, 2023, 10am – 6pm

WHERE: Ventura First United Methodist Church, 1338 E. Santa Clara St., Ventura CA 93003

The Caid College of Scribes has three purposes. The first is to educate the populace in manuscript/scribal arts, thus creating scribes. The second is to provide those scribes with a community. The third is to make scrolls for the kingdom.

Scribal arts are often solitary by the nature of what we do since it's not particularly weather resistant. So in keeping with the College's first and second purposes, the Scribal Playday was created. It's an opportunity for the community to come together in person.

There will be classes in a wide variety of subjects. Ever wanted to learn to cut a quill or to do gilding? Try your hand at calligraphy or painting? This is a great place to start. Full class schedule to be announced at a later date.

You don't need any experience to come and you don't need any supplies. We've got you covered and have introductory supply kits available for new scribes that will get you set up to start with the essential basics like paint and brushes.

There will be space available for those working on existing scrolls and projects available for those working on their first shiny thing. So, join the College of Scribes for a day of manuscript arts classes and community comradery. It's an excellent opportunity to make new friends or see old ones. It's also a great way to find a teammate if you're a calligrapher seeking an illuminator or visa versa.

Garb is optional. See you all there.
